

Fraunhofer IKTS is pleased to invite you to the 3rd Dresden Battery Days meeting on “All-solid-state batteries – already on the way from the laboratory to production?” from September 23–25, 2019 taking place in Dresden, Germany.

This two-day meeting will be dedicated to the exchange of knowledge between international electrochemical energy storage experts on the specific topics of

- Status of research and development of solid-state batteries
- Manufacturing processes for solid-state batteries
- Aspects of future systems integration and applications

Most of the lectures will be given by invited speakers. However, there will be an opportunity to contribute to the symposium in the form of posters (limited number).

Furthermore, we invite you to intensify contacts and topics at the get together as well as the evening program. The symposium will be complemented by an industrial exhibition.

Organizing committee

- Prof. Dr. Jürgen Garche, FUEL CELL and BATTERY CONSULTING – FCBAT Ulm
- Stefan Koller, VARTA Micro Innovation GmbH, Graz
- Dr. Mareike Wolter, Fraunhofer IKTS, Dresden
